HAYWOOD SAYS HE DID NOT PAY ORCHARD A CENT

BOISE, Idaho, July 12.-William D. Haywood, his own witness, and probably the last battering shot leveled by the defense at the already shattered story of Harry Orchard, declared on the witness stand that not only had the crimes Orchard related, and Haywood emphatically denied all connection in any way with any of these felonies.

He then proceeded to tell of his acquaintance and relations with "Steve"
Adams. He said he telegraphed $75 to "Steve" at Ogden and later sent Mrs.
Adams $30 relief money.
Haywood explained the $100 draft sent to "Jack" Simpkins on December 21, 1960, which the State contends was a remittance for Orchard. The defendant says Simpkins drew $221.35 per diem and expenses, and left $100 with Haywood to be sent by draft.
Simpkins was going to Index and did not want to carry all his money. A

Simpkins was going to index and did not want to carry all his money. A few days later Haywood took Simpkins' $100 from the safe, bought a draft and mailed it. He denied any knowledge of the unsigned letter received by Orchard at Caldwell, which contained the information "that was sent to 'Jack' on the twenty-first."

story of Harry Orchard, declared on the witness stand that not only had he never had any complicity in the murder of former Governor Steunenberg. But that he never knew him, 'nor, indeed, had even seen him.

Haywood, talking calmly, simply, and straightforwardly, denied absolutely the statement of Orchard that he had paid the latter $500 for blowing up the Vindicator mine in December, 1903. He declared that he never met Orchard until January, 1904.

Never Loved Any But Her.

February 21, 1906.

Dearest Sweetheart:
If you will listen to me we will never have to part. I never did love but one girl in my life and that one was you. It seems a year since I saw you, but it has been only a few hours. I am so lonely when away from you. If I were with you now I would be the happiest fellow in the world. With all my heart and love.

LA PLATA, Md., July 12.—In support of the contention that Hubert Posey had led Sis Bowie to believe that he would lead her to the altar, a score or more of his letters to her were made public. Sweetheart, please keep a little cozy corner in your heart for me. If you will be true to me I'll be true to you. I will forsake all other girls for you, sweetheart. Ing to protect himself. 'These men won't wait for you to get that thing into action,' I said. 'They will beat you over the head before you can get it out.'"

Having thus expressed his opinion of the value of the forty-five as a fighting weapon at close quarters, Haywood told of seeing Moyer and Orchard measure their suitcases to see how much the shotguns had to be cut off, with evident approval of that sort of weapon.

The conversation was in Pettibone's kitchen one day in August, 1995, when Orchard was living with Pettibone's house when the three of them Orchard was living with Pettibone's absence.

There was a general talk in Pettibone's house when the three of them discussed a letter from Arthur Parker, who had bought an eleven-acre patch of ground up near Seattle, and was singing the praises of a farmer's life as compared with the miner's.

Orchard apparently did not have much to say about that, for Haywood repeated nothing that he said.

It was Orchard who first told of this letter from Parker, on his cross-examination. Haywood corroborated Orchard at several other little points, as did Moyer. It is curious how those little points of corroboration run through so much of the testimony of the witnesses for the defense, while they all steadily and emphatically deny every allegation he made concerning any of them.

They make Orchard to be a most accomplished liar, who took a simple and plain string of truths and embroidered them into a most wonderful edging of falsehoods.

Lonely Without Her.

HORSE AND WAGON LOANED TO CAMP

Encouraging Letters Accompany Contributions to Summer Outings.

In response to a recent newspaper appeal, S. A. Birch, a coal dealer at 1218 Fourth street northwest, has given the summer outings committee of the Assoclated Charities, the loan of a horse, wagon, and harness, for the season. The secretary says this gift has been greatly needed to transport tired mothers to camp.

Contributions this year are accom panied by a great many letters thanking the summer outings committee for the opportunity of contributing to this popular cause. A typical letter comes from a police officer, who says:

"Dear Mr. Well-Doer: Accept the inclosed $2. It is not much for the suffering little ones, but I guess I can do the same for August and September. When I sit in the cool air of electric fans I feel ashafined to say that heretofore I have never thought what your society is doing. I am only a police officer, but I feel I can help God's little ones some.

the Conduit road to Glen Echo and oot us off the map. Injunctions have shoot us off the map. Injunctions have failed.
"I am confident that the council of Glen Echo will uphold me in everything that I have done. We shall have a meeting in the town hall tomorrow night, when the whole matter will be thoroughly discussed."

Collins Back at Work.

Marshal Collins returned to-work at Glen Echo last night at 7 o'clock, as forecasted in The Times yesterday afternoon. The militant officer of the law says that he cannot afford to allow Mayor Garrett to fight this battle alone. That united they will stand; divided they might fall.

Collins bestirred himself as soon as he resumed his commission as town marshal. He arrested a colored attendant riding in the automobile of Arthur G. Newmyer, upon the charge of operating a car without a Maryland license. Mr. Newmyer informed the marshal that the attendant had not operated the car, but that he, Mr. Newmyer, owner of the machine, was acting as his own chauf-feur,

Case Is State Matter.

Upon this representation, the attendant was released, but was ordered to will probably be tried before a justice. Two other arrests of minor importance were made. Mr. Shaw, who has acted as substitute marshal since Collins' resignation became effective, has re-sumed his duties as deputy marshal.

G. L. Baker, attorney for Mr. Lutz, who made the statements concerning the Gien Echo charter yesterday, when seen this morning by a Times reporter and informed of Mayor Garrett's denial, said that he had nothing further to say on the subject today, but would probably issue a statement soon.

Sometimes thought they got less, but after spending all the money I could afford for such treatment, I found I still had my wrinkles.
